ALLIES MASSED FOR NEW CROSSING OF RHINE

The War Today..

By DeWitt MacKenzie
AP War Analyst

THE WHIRLWIND CONQUEST of the Saarland and palatinate by the U. S. Third and Seventh armies under the grand team — Generals Patton and Patch—represents one of the major victories of the war and one likely to precipitate the trans-Rhenish invasion of the great Ruhr industrial center by Allied forces north of Cologne.

Supreme Allied headquarters tell us the German hold on the Saar-palatinate area west of the Rhine has been reduced to "little more than a bridgehead." This means the Patton-Patch combination has nullified any German menace to the Allied right flank west of the Rhine and thus has removed what may be the last obstacle to the eagerly awaited invasion of the Ruhr by the Allied left, or northern, flank.

One finds no argument against the belief expressed by the German radio that Field Marshal Montgomery's command is about to cross the Rhine. The radio also thinks airborne troops will be employed—which sounds wholly reasonable. Hundreds of thousands of terrified German civilians are fleeing from the doomed Ruhr, tying Nazi military operations in knots.

The Saar - palatinate victory reaches much further than that. It has disrupted two German armies—the First and the Seventh—and inflicted casualties expected to run beyond the 100,000 mark. That is a greater loss to the crippled Nazi fighting machine at this critical juncture than several hundred thousand casualties would have been early in the war.

The Hitlerites haven't the troops to defend the long battle front of the Rhine. There will be fierce fighting, but they can't stop us from swarming across this last great barrier to the heart of the Reich.

THEN THERE'S a third barb to the disaster which has overtaken the Germans on the Saar-palatinate battlefield. The Saar is the third most important of the some half dozen big industrial centers upon which the Reich has been depending. The Ruhr tops the list. Next comes Silesia on the Eastern front, and there have been other manufacturing areas in Bavaria, Czechoslovakia, Austria and Hungary.

The Muscovites have ripped the Silesian fields to shreds, depriving Germany of one of its main sources of coal, iron and other minerals, agricultural products and a variety of manufactures. The Ruhr, which

1-YEAR DRAFT LAW EXTENSION WINS APPROVAL

House Committee Upholds Training Period; Plan European Discharges

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 22.—The house military committee today unanimously approved a one-year extension of the draft law—without changes.

The action was taken after a brief hearing during which Army spokesmen asked that no restrictions be placed against the current policy of sending men into combat five months after their induction when necessary.

Some members had sought to ban the sending of teen-age inductees into combat without a specified period of training.

Chairman May (D., Ky.) said he would seek house consideration of the bill early next week. Unless Congress extends it, the present draft law, enacted in 1940, will become inoperative on May 15.

Five-Month Training Period

Although some committee members had inclined toward extensive hearings to consider numerous amendments only two witnesses, Maj. Gen. Idwal Edwards, in charge of training, and Maj. Gen. Stephen G. Henry, in charge of personnel, were heard.

Gen. Edwards told the committee the need for replacements had resulted in a policy by which physically fit men were sent into combat within five months of their induction.

There has been a case, Gen Edwards said, of a man being killed in action "five months and nine days" after induction.

He said he did not believe it possible for a man to go into combat sooner than five months after donning a uniform.

Should Congress restrict handling of inductees by requiring a stated training period, perhaps a year, Gen. Edwards said, present operations would be retarded and demands for fighting replacements could not be filled.

Discharges Contemplated

No men, he emphasized, are sent into combat until "we consider them adequately trained and physically hardened to the degree needed".

Gen. Edwards said United States forces have met only "about 10 per cent of the Japanese army".

He described plans for the release, after the fall of Germany, of men with long and outstanding service records and with dependents.

A point system governing release procedure, he said, is expected to be sent to theater commanders within the next 10 days but will be kept a "top secret" until Germany quits. It will take into consideration, he explained, the length of service, the time of service abroad, the number of battles in which a man participated, the number of medals or wounds he received, and the number of dependents. Just how each factor will be weighed, he did not say.

COLUMBUS, March 22.—Col. C. W. Goble, state Selective Service director, said today all Ohio local draft boards have been directed to reopen on and after April 1 the cases of all registrants, 18 through 19 years of age, still in Class II-A or II-D for whom no deferment form has been filed.

Under a new certification plan, announced several weeks ago, employers in essential industries must request deferment of indispensable and irreplacable employes in the 18 to 29 age bracket by submitting a specific form.

9 DAYS REMAIN TO BUY AUTO LICENSES

With but nine days remaining to secure 1945 licenses, more than 3,000 Salem motorists and others from the district have yet to make their purchases, A. P. Morris, manager of the Columbiana County Motor club, said today.

To date about 2,000 plates have been issued, Morris reports, and the sale as yet has not been running up to usual standards.

The 1945 plates were useable on March 1 while the old 1944 plates are good until midnight March 31.

Telephone, Power Service Here Crippled By Spring Snowstorm

Freakish snow and sleet storms accompanied by high winds hit several sections of northern and eastern Ohio last night—the first day of spring—breaking power lines and slowing transportation.

Both Ohio Edison Co. and Ohio Bell Telephone Co. maintenance crews here were at work most of the afternoon and evening repairing lines and poles damaged by the heavy winds and freezing snowfall. Power service to the district around the Damascus, Georgetown and Winona roads was disrupted for several hours last night.

Temperatures here took a definite drop yesterday as balmy spring weather changed suddenly and a minimum of 32 degrees was recorded. It was 41 at noon Wednesday.

Hundreds of power and telephone wires at Youngstown were broken and parts of the city were in darkness most of the night.

Busses from Pittsburgh were reported running two to three hours late this morning but interurban transportation operated on near normal schedules.

Unity, near East Palestine, reported snow eight inches deep on rural roads.

East Liverpool experienced one of its worst sleet storms in years. Several 22,000-volt high tension wires of the Ohio Power Co., running from Zindsor, W. Va., to East Liverpool were down and many homes and industries at East Liverpool and in nearby Wellsville and Salineville were without power for more than two hours in some instances. From 30 to 40 toll circuits of the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. were out near East Liverpool.

Snowfall measured around five inches at East Liverpool and the Ohio river was expected to reach flood stage of 33 feet. The stream was rising at a rate of 3 foot an hour.

Steubenville also expected a minor flood of 35 feet, three feet over flood stage. Heavy drifts were reported on county roads and bus service between Steubenville and East Liverpool was suspended for two hours.

Night Spots Ignore La Guardia's Extra Hour Of Tolerance

NEW YORK, March 22. — Night club and restaurant proprietors, reneging against their three-day star billing in the New York City vs. the Nation Curfew Clash, have announced they will adhere to the midnight closing.

The allied food and entertainment industries of greater New York said its members would ignore the "extra hour of tolerance" granted by Mayor LaGuardia.

Many night clubs and hotels, not members of the association, also announced they would return to the midnight curfew. Their decision left the mayor in the position of a general without troops.

Arthur Garfield Hays, counsel for the association, said Mayor La Guardia has shown sound leadership in his endeavor to make the curfew conform to conditions in a large metropolis. Whatever may be the government's objectives, he knows how they best can be obtained here.

"However, it looks to us as though somebody in Washington is trying to make a political issue of this and we are not willing to take a position that might embarrass the mayor. Nor are we inclined to serve civilians when service is denied to men in uniform."

GERMANS FLEE FROM RUHR IN MASS EXODUS

Thousands Of Civilians Seek Safety; People Told Outlook Bad

(By Associated Press)

LONDON, March 22.—Hundreds of thousands of German civilians were reported in flight today from the Ruhr valley and menaced areas immediately east of the Rhine, gravely hindering Nazi military transport in their frantic haste to escape the advancing Allied armies.

Swedish advices said roads leading eastward to Nuernberg and Munich were crowded with civilians, and likened the situation to 1940 when the conquering Nazi armies overran the low countries and France, driving before them a flood of refugees which impeded Allied troops trying to stem the enemy tide.

Speeding the exodus was news of the disaster which has befallen the German armies east of the Rhine and German radio predictions of an Allied airborne invasion of the Ruhr—predictions given color by Allied air attacks yesterday on airfields in that area.

Allied propagandists dinned into German ears Gen. Eisenhower's warning that areas in the path of the Allied armies would be death-traps for civilians remaining there.

Ruhr Cities Deserted

The Stockholm newspaper Svenska Dagbladet said Essen, Dortmund, Gelsenkirchen, Bochum and other cities in the Ruhr region were deserted.

The German people were told by their government last night that they are facing a sharp cut in food rations and that they soon may get no meat at all.

"Our plans have been wrecked because millions of Germans have returned from border areas and have to be fed on shrunken space," declared Joseph Stock, agricultural director of the Reich, in a radio broadcast.

"Decrees already have been issued which will cut deeply into everybody's food rations. More measures will follow."

The Moscow radio broadcast a statement in the name of the "free German committee" in the Soviet capital urging the Ruhr miners to protect their mines from attempts at destruction by Nazi officials.

Hitler Has Postwar Hopes

A Maj. Stettlein, described as a member of the committee—composed largely of captured German officers—told the miners:

"Should there be fighting in the Ruhr the mines will be destroyed and coal production will be restricted for many years. This will make

The citation from the War Department read:

"For meritorious achievement while participating in sustained bomber combat operations over Germany and German occupied countries. The courage, coolness and skill displayed by this officer upon these occasions reflect great credit upon himself and the Armed Forces of the United States."

Capt. Joseph G. Burris, base public relations officer, presented the medal to Mrs. McCready.

Yank Armies Crush Enemy West of River

(By The Associated Press)

PARIS, March 22.—The Third and Seventh armies crushed all but German pockets west of the Rhine today while Allied bombers smashed by the hundreds north of the Ruhr, where the enemy said the Allies had massed enormous strength for an imminent new crossing of the river.

Only remnants remained to be cleaned up in the German chemical capital of Ludwigshafen, enveloped by the Third army. A stiff fight for Mainz flared into its third day. The Germans in the palatinate and Saarland had lost probably well over 100,000 men—88,335 in prisoners alone—and two whole armies.

The United States Seventh army formed numerous lineups with the Third army.

The First army pushed to the Sieg river at points 12 miles from the Ruhr and 13 of its large industrial centers at Mulheim and Gladbach, east of Cologne.

Nervous German broadcasts and the blows of Allied planes focused attention in the tank country of the German plains north of the Ruhr and the great industrial basin itself, marked for conquest by Gen. Eisenhower. The flatlands leadd to Berlin's north door.

"Three Allied armies are poised only 63 miles of the lower Rhine from Duesseldorf to Arnhem and are ready to join any moment now in the general offensive," Berlin said.

These were the Canadian first, the British Second, the American ninth and—by enemy account "considerable part of the American First army," also fighting south of the Ruhr and east of the Rhine.

The whole circle of roads and railway bottlenecks centered by Muenster was under blazing and continuous air attack.

28-Mile Advances

While the Third army mopped up enemy remnants in the chemical center of Ludwigshafen and fought hard for the Hessian capital of Mainz, Seventh army elements broke loose in advances of 28 miles to points many miles north of areas captured earlier by the Third army.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third army counted 11,335 prisoners yesterday and had another 11,000 still not processed for a total of around 22,335 prisoners—raising the estimated prison bag alone for the campaign to around 88,335 Germans.

Allied planes battered the whole flat tank country north of the Ruhr to Bremen in prelude to perhaps the next campaign toward Berlin.

Patton's tank columns raced to within six miles of the palatinate capital of Speyer and six of the road center of Landau, where the Third was within less than nine miles of another junction with the Seventh army north of the Wissembourg gap.

Heavy fighting continued in Mainz. The German hold on the west bank of the Rhine was whittled to less than 20 miles. Neustadt fell.

The Third army was fighting 100 miles inside Germany and 300 from

1,300 American Bombers Dump Explosives On Enemy Army Camps

(By Associated Press)

LONDON, March 22 — The full fury of Allied air might was turned directly on German troops jammed into the Ruhr today as 1,300 American heavy bombers blasted nine of the largest army camps in western Germany and five more airfields near the front.

Incomplete reports indicated more than 7,000 war planes were taking a crack at German targets.

Fourteen waves of Fortresses and Liberators were protected by 700 mustangs in the attacks on camps and air bases in the Ruhr. The Mustangs also patrolled the sky for other widespread air operations ranging from the North sea to Austria.

The tactical air commands thus were able to throw their full weight into the merciless offensive which Gen. Eisenhower has warned was coming.

Indications were that another two-way blitz was developing against the Reich — a blow which perhaps would equal yesterday's record attacks by 7,000 planes which dumped most of their bombloads into an area smaller than the state of Missouri.

This great operation spread destruction across scores of railway centers, fortified towns and airfields on the north German plain.

Ten airfields serving as the "eye of the German high command" were beaten and set afire.

An RAF reconnaissance pilot said he did not pass a single sizeable town which was not in flames.

REACH $30,500 IN RED CROSS DRIVE

The Salem Red Cross War Fund drive drew closer to the goal today as officials announced the collection of $30,500, an increase of $1,000 over the figure released yesterday.

The goal of $32,300 is expected to be surpassed within a day or two, officials said, as several contributing sources have yet to report.

A total of $1,800 is needed to reach the figure set for Salem by national Red Cross headquarters.

Theaters' Collections Net Red Cross $808.71

Theater collections for the Salem Red Cross War fund drive netted $808.71, Red Cross officials reported today.

Under the auspices of the management of the State and Grand theaters that total was collected between March 15 and 20. The State donations netted $637.83 and the Grand $170.88.

The largest single day's collection was Saturday when $160.83 was taken in.

COLUMBUS, March 22.—Col. C. W. Goble, state Selective Service director, said today all Ohio local draft boards have been directed to reopen on and after April 1 the cases of all registrants, 18 through 19 years of age, still in Class II-A or II-D for whom no deferment form has been filed.

Under a new certification plan, announced several weeks ago, employers in essential industries must request deferment of indispensable and irreplacable employes in the 18 to 29 age bracket by submitting a specific form.

9 DAYS REMAIN TO BUY AUTO LICENSES

With but nine days remaining to secure 1945 licenses, more than 3,000 Salem motorists and others from the district have yet to make their purchases, A. P. Morris, manager of the Columbiana County Motor club, said today.

To date about 2,000 plates have been issued, Morris reports, and the sale as yet has not been running up to usual standards.

The 1945 plates were useable on March 1 while the old 1944 plates are good until midnight March 31.

Telephone, Power Service Here Crippled By Spring Snowstorm

Freakish snow and sleet storms accompanied by high winds hit several sections of northern and eastern Ohio last night—the first day of spring—breaking power lines and slowing transportation.

Both Ohio Edison Co. and Ohio Bell Telephone Co. maintenance crews here were at work most of the afternoon and evening repairing lines and poles damaged by the heavy winds and freezing snowfall. Power service to the district around the Damascus, Georgetown and Winona roads was disrupted for several hours last night.

Temperatures here took a definite drop yesterday as balmy spring weather changed suddenly and a minimum of 32 degrees was recorded. It was 41 at noon Wednesday.

Hundreds of power and telephone wires at Youngstown were broken and parts of the city were in darkness most of the night.

Busses from Pittsburgh were reported running two to three hours late this morning but interurban transportation operated on near normal schedules.

Unity, near East Palestine, reported snow eight inches deep on rural roads.

East Liverpool experienced one of its worst sleet storms in years. Several 22,000-volt high tension wires of the Ohio Power Co., running from Zindsor, W. Va., to East Liverpool were down and many homes and industries at East Liverpool and in nearby Wellsville and Salineville were without power for more than two hours in some instances. From 30 to 40 toll circuits of the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. were out near East Liverpool.

Snowfall measured around five inches at East Liverpool and the Ohio river was expected to reach flood stage of 33 feet. The stream was rising at a rate of 3 foot an hour.

Steubenville also expected a minor flood of 35 feet, three feet over flood stage. Heavy drifts were reported on county roads and bus service between Steubenville and East Liverpool was suspended for two hours.

Night Spots Ignore La Guardia's Extra Hour Of Tolerance

NEW YORK, March 22. — Night club and restaurant proprietors, reneging against their three-day star billing in the New York City vs. the Nation Curfew Clash, have announced they will adhere to the midnight closing.

The allied food and entertainment industries of greater New York said its members would ignore the "extra hour of tolerance" granted by Mayor LaGuardia.

Many night clubs and hotels, not members of the association, also announced they would return to the midnight curfew. Their decision left the mayor in the position of a general without troops.

Arthur Garfield Hays, counsel for the association, said Mayor La Guardia has shown sound leadership in his endeavor to make the curfew conform to conditions in a large metropolis. Whatever may be the government's objectives, he knows how they best can be obtained here.

"However, it looks to us as though somebody in Washington is trying to make a political issue of this and we are not willing to take a position that might embarrass the mayor. Nor are we inclined to serve civilians when service is denied to men in uniform."

GERMANS FLEE FROM RUHR IN MASS EXODUS

Thousands Of Civilians Seek Safety; People Told Outlook Bad

(By Associated Press)

LONDON, March 22.—Hundreds of thousands of German civilians were reported in flight today from the Ruhr valley and menaced areas immediately east of the Rhine, gravely hindering Nazi military transport in their frantic haste to escape the advancing Allied armies.

Swedish advices said roads leading eastward to Nuernberg and Munich were crowded with civilians, and likened the situation to 1940 when the conquering Nazi armies overran the low countries and France, driving before them a flood of refugees which impeded Allied troops trying to stem the enemy tide.

Speeding the exodus was news of the disaster which has befallen the German armies east of the Rhine and German radio predictions of an Allied airborne invasion of the Ruhr—predictions given color by Allied air attacks yesterday on airfields in that area.

Allied propagandists dinned into German ears Gen. Eisenhower's warning that areas in the path of the Allied armies would be deathtraps for civilians remaining there.

Ruhr Cities Deserted

The Stockholm newspaper Svenska Dagbladet said Essen, Dortmund, Gelsenkirchen, Bochum and other cities in the Ruhr region were deserted.

The German people were told by their government last night that they are facing a sharp cut in food rations and that they soon may get no meat at all.

"Our plans have been wrecked because millions of Germans have returned from border areas and have to be fed on shrunken space," declared Joseph Stock, agricultural director of the Reich, in a radio broadcast.

"Decrees already have been issued which will cut deeply into everybody's food rations. More measures will follow."

The Moscow radio broadcast a statement in the name of the "free German committee" in the Soviet capital urging the Ruhr miners to protect their mines from attempts at destruction by Nazi officials.

Hitler Has Postwar Hopes

A Maj. Stettlein, described as a member of the committee—composed largely of captured German officers—told the miners:

"Should there be fighting in the Ruhr the mines will be destroyed and coal production will be restricted for many years. This will make

Mother Given Medal For Prisoner Son

Mrs. Anna M. McCready of 284 E. Fourth st. yesterday received the Air Medal in a ceremony at Lockbourne Army Air base, Columbus, for her son, Second Lieut. Eugene W. McCready, now a prisoner of war.

The citation from the War Department read:

"For meritorious achievement while participating in sustained bomber combat operations over Germany and German occupied countries. The courage, coolness and skill displayed by this officer upon these occasions reflect great credit upon himself and the Armed Forces of the United States."

Capt. Joseph G. Burris, base public relations officer, presented the medal to Mrs. McCready.

Yank Armies Crush Enemy West of River

(By The Associated Press)

PARIS, March 22.—The Third and Seventh armies crushed all but German pockets west of the Rhine today while Allied bombers smashed by the hundreds north of the Ruhr, where the enemy said the Allies had massed enormous strength for an imminent new crossing of the river.

Only remnants remained to be cleaned up in the German chemical capital of Ludwigshafen, enveloped by the Third army. A stiff fight for Mainz flared into its third day. The Germans in the palatinate and Saarland had lost probably well over 100,000 men—88,335 in prisoners alone—and two whole armies.

The United States Seventh army formed numerous lineups with the Third army.

The First army pushed to the Sieg river at points 12 miles from the Ruhr and 13 of its large industrial centers at Mulheim and Gladbach, east of Cologne.

Nervous German broadcasts and the blows of Allied planes focused attention in the tank country of the German plains north of the Ruhr and the great industrial basin itself, marked for conquest by Gen. Eisenhower. The flatlands leadd to Berlin's north door.

"Three Allied armies are poised only 63 miles of the lower Rhine from Duesseldorf to Arnhem and are ready to join any moment now in the general offensive," Berlin said.

These were the Canadian first, the British Second, the American ninth and—by enemy account "considerable part of the American First army," also fighting south of the Ruhr and east of the Rhine.

The whole circle of roads and railway bottlenecks centered by Muenster was under blazing and continuous air attack.

A 28-Mile Advance

While the Third army mopped up enemy remnants in the chemical center of Ludwigshafen and fought hard for the Hessian capital of Mainz, Seventh army elements broke loose in advances of 28 miles to points many miles north of areas captured earlier by the Third army.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third army counted 11,335 prisoners yesterday and had another 11,000 still not processed for a total of around 22,335 prisoners—raising the estimated prison bag alone for the campaign to around 88,335 Germans.

Allied planes battered the whole flat tank country north of the Ruhr to Bremen in prelude to perhaps the next campaign toward Berlin.

Patton's tank columns raced to within six miles of the palatinate capital of Speyer and six of the road center of Landau, where the Third was within less than nine miles of another junction with the Seventh army north of the Wissembourg gap.

Heavy fighting continued in Mainz. The German hold on the west bank of the Rhine was whittled to less than 20 miles. Neustadt fell.

The Third army was fighting 100 miles inside Germany and 300 from

ALLIED PILOTS HAMMER REICH

1,300 American Bombers Dump Explosives On Enemy Army Camps

(By Associated Press)

LONDON, March 22 — The full fury of Allied air might was turned directly on German troops jammed into the Ruhr today as 1,300 American heavy bombers blasted nine of the largest army camps in western Germany and five more airfields near the front.

Incomplete reports indicated more than 7,000 war planes were taking a crack at German targets.

Fourteen waves of Fortresses and Liberators were protected by 700 mustangs in the attacks on camps and air bases in the Ruhr. The Mustangs also patrolled the sky for other widespread air operations ranging from the North sea to Austria.

The tactical air commands thus were able to throw their full weight into the merciless offensive which Gen. Eisenhower has warned was coming.

Indications were that another two-way blitz was developing against the Reich — a blow which perhaps would equal yesterday's record attacks by 7,000 planes which dumped most of their bombloads into an area smaller than the state of Missouri.

This great operation spread destruction across scores of railway centers, fortified towns and airfields on the north German plain.

Ten airfields serving as the "eye" of the German high command were beaten and set afire.

An RAF reconnaissance pilot said he did not pass a single sizeable town which was not in flames.

REACH $30,500 IN RED CROSS DRIVE

The Salem Red Cross War Fund drive drew closer to the goal today as officials announced the collection of $30,500, an increase of $1,600 over the figure released yesterday.

The goal of $32,300 is expected to be surpassed within a day or two, officials said, as several contributing sources have yet to report.

A total of $1,800 is needed to reach the figure set for Salem by national Red Cross headquarters.

Theaters' Collections Net Red Cross $808.71

Theater collections for the Salem Red Cross War fund drive netted $808.71, Red Cross officials reported today.

Under the auspices of the management of the State and Grand theaters that total was collected between March 15 and 20. The State donations netted $637.83 and the Grand $170.88.

The largest single day's collection was Saturday when $160.83 was taken in.

Deferred Spending

The Ohio legislature's reception of Governor Lausche's first set of budget recommendations probably has been predetermined by its working policy of the last half decade. It will authorize the governor's requests substantially as submitted because they fall well inside the state's probable revenues from existing taxation.

The key to the budget is the sum set aside for deferred spending. Governor Lausche's administration inherited approximately 92 million dollars from the Bricker administration. It proposes to sequester that sum for future use and to add to it appropriations for capital improvements totaling $54,645,000 during the next two years, or about 25 million more than was appropriated for the same purpose in former Governor Bricker's last budget.

The total sum of deferred spending now in sight thus reaches the impressive sum of $146,000,000 by 1947—and it probably will be even larger than that barring revisions of revenue. The only possibility of revenue revision, aside from the decrease which Governor Lausche warns will follow the end of the war, consists in the legislature's attitude on tax legislation. The Republican majority's spokesmen recently announced that delay in preparation of budget recommendations was forcing them to deal with reenactment of cigaret, liquid fuel and public utility excise tax laws without knowing whether the revenue from these taxes would be needed.

Governor Lausche has made it plain that he intends to follow the example of the Bricker administration by setting aside surplus funds for postwar needs. In other words, the taxes which helped produce surplus revenue during his predecessor's administration will be used for the same purpose during his administration. Referred spending will continue to be an Ohio fiscal policy.

The Seasons March On

In the spring of 1945, the end of the war in Europe is imminent. It will be over by the end of spring, or the beginning of summer.

But it cannot be forgotten that in every season since the autumn of 1939 the end of the war in Europe has been imminent, though with less justification than exists now, more than five years later.

Germany apparently expected the war to be over after the blitzkrieg in Poland had revealed the potentialities of Hitler's war machinery. Certainly, many Germans and a great many other Europeans expected it to be over by the end of the next summer, after the collapse of France made Germany the master of the continent.

There were days late in 1941 when Germans and Japanese must have shared the hope that complete victory would belong to the Axis before the end of winter. And during 1942 and in the early part of 1943 there were many days when those who knew most about shipping losses wondered whether Allied resistance could be sustained much longer.

But the war continued. Perhaps this time the expectation of an approaching climax will not be disappointed. It is shared; the Germans, too, know the war's duration in Europe now is a matter of weeks and months. It will be over by summer—in Europe. Its duration in the Pacific is still so indeterminate that years have not been broken down into seasons. There, the war will be over sometime by 1950, perhaps sooner. Spring, summer and winter are of no consequence.

A Food Investigation

Politically, nothing could be timelier than a Congressional investigation of food shortages at the moment when shortages are beginning to make news.

But practically, the senators who have jumped into the breach and the representatives who will follow them had better spend their time raising Victory gardens.

The United States cannot deplete its supply of farm labor, put unprecedented buying power into the hands of all industrial labor, support history's largest army, furnish food to virtually every hungry ally who puts in a request and cut off the main flow of farm machinery all at the same time without experiencing some kind of a food shortage. When such additional disturbances are counted in as a transportation shortage, a manpower shortage in the food handling industry and full employment making people hungrier than they ordinarily get, the mystery is how most American families still are able to sit down to meals that would make their counterparts in any other part of the world think the war was over and a feast was being held in celebration. It may be doubted that the Congressional investigators will find out anything about the food shortage that isn't known already.

The Stars Say

For Friday, March 23.

AN exciting and dramatic day may be looked for according to a chain of very interesting aspects. The novel, exceptional, probably unorthodox and unconventional may come to the fore, with incentive to make bold and audacious moves outside accepted grooves or into strange pastures in both idealistic objectives and mental flights.

These may concern or attract public attention with cooperation from public, political or diplomatic bodies. In private relations there is need of circumspect and considered conduct, as emotional imbalance may run away with better and safer judgments, causing regrets.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a progressive and eventful year, of sudden and thrilling adventures, in which there are possibilities of public, fraternal, political or perhaps sensational complications, involving the business, professional or romantic life. Novel, original, strange and dramatic circumstances may bring events into the limelight, unless discreet, prudent and restrained impulses be ruled by reason and good sense. In all affiliations, be circumspect for surprising denouements. Ideals and emotions may beget curious alliances.

A child born on this day may possess exceptional talents and skills of an idealistic, ingenious or curious quality, inspiring a thrilling and adventurous career, possibly of a spectacular nature.

Nazism In Defeat

By James Thrasher

The Nazi political philosophy, compounded of distortions, lies, opportunism and terrorism, flourished in a fertile soil when things were going well for the Nazi war machine. But it required victories to justify its violent measures because it was less a way of living than a blueprint for conquest, a means toward a violent end.

Now those victories are not forthcoming. The soil which nourished Nazism has been invaded. And suddenly it is apparent that the Nazi philosophy and those who created it are utterly incapable of coping with defeat.

Recent pronouncements of Propaganda Minister Goebbels and Labor Leader Ley would be amusing if they did not create the uncomfortable impression that the German nation is in the hands of madmen. Goebbels tells the Germans that "he who fights with least regard for losses has the most chance of winning". Ley tells them that it is well that they are no longer winning, for "the intoxication of victories in all quarters of the globe was distracting".

There has been more of the same from these and others. And Hitler, of course, has been gibbering increasingly fantastic promises of ultimate victory without even attempting to back them with a semblance of logic.

Perhaps the maddest of all stories concerns Hitler's plans for a new capital after the war. The story comes from Stockholm, is credited to neutral and component informants, and is said to have been discussed seriously in high Nazi circles. Against the background of other recent Nazi utterances, it seems credible.

Hitler, the story goes, has abandoned the idea of keeping the postwar capital in Berlin, for Berlin is too shattered to rebuild. So he plans to move it to Hamburg. Of course, Hamburg can't be rebuilt, either. So he would move Hamburg down river to where Cuxhaven now stands. He doesn't say what would become of Cuxhaven. Perhaps it would be moved to Berlin.

At any rate, that is his reported plan. And on the banks of the Elbe he would erect a statue of a "Goddess of Liberty" to welcome shiploads of "oppressed Bolshevik and Jew-ridden" American passengers.

It is almost incredible that the leader of a nation now fighting a losing battle for its present guilty life could delude himself into pottering about with this impossible dream. It is almost incredible that his fantasies could be listened to and repeated by his followers.

It is almost incredible, but not quite. For it is not unreasonable that a man of Hitler's mentality should lee headlong from reality when he could no longer cope with it. Hitler knows he will never reconstruct the German capital. He knows that if Germany ever erects a Goddess of Liberty it will not celebrate the Hitler concept of "liberty".

Yet like a child, or even more like a fool, he seeks to dodge approaching disaster by refusing to recognize its approach. Even if one doesn't believe the Stockholm story, there is evidence to support that statement.

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

An Explanation of Hunger

By DR. HERMAN BUNDESON

NOT many people know that hunger is a state of the blood. It takes some time—several hours—before food digests, assimilates, and enters the blood stream, when the feeling of hunger at once disappears. That is why it is considered wise to stop eating while the appetite is not entirely satisfied.

The difference between hunger and good appetite is only a matter of degree. Both sensations are probably due to fine muscular waves which pass across the stomach. If the continued absence of food induces a state of the blood which provokes reflexly very strong, rapidly recurring waves, the sensation passes from appetite to hunger.

Paradox of Nature

It seems paradoxical that Nature should supply us with a greater appetite than need for food. But this quite possibly dates back to the days when food was scarce and had to be eaten in sufficient quantities to last until the next meal which might not prove immediately available.

Does good appetite or hunger help the digestion of foods? There seems a prevalent belief that all white meat is easily digested. It happens to be true that breast of chicken and many kinds of fish are quickly digestible, but the size of muscle fiber — the smaller and finer, the better—governs the digestibility of meat and fish. Lobster, though white, is of large tough fibers and difficult for the stomach to handle. Most fish, however, is highly nutritious and easily digested — though why it has been glorified as a brain food is one of those phenomena of the humar imagination.

Children's Diet

Children, if supplied with an abundance of milk and other animal foods, will not suffer a loss of energy if their diet omits meat, for the reason that meat is a stimulant which any normal child does not require. Too much meat tends to make children excitable and restless at night. A small piece of meat once a day, on the other hand is not harmful to any healthy child who has reached the age where meat has been included in his daily rations — about two years.

For the normal person, the appetite is a natural guide to the kinds and amounts of food that should be eaten. But natural appetite cannot be trusted altogether, because we have damaged it by our habits of overeating, eating when not hungry and seasoning our food so highly as to stimulate the appetite beyond capacity.

Hunger is caused by the rhythmic contractions of the stomach. These contractions are not checked by sleep, but, if they are strong, they may interfere with sleep and cause restlessness. Food stops the hunger contractions and that lets you go to sleep. Hence the bedtime snack—the well-known pitfall of the overweight.

(Dr. Bundensen will answer letters containing medical questions only through his column.)

WEBER'S CASE

Editor, The News:

The fact that Private Henry Weber's sentence has been reduced, by stages, to five years at hard labor, does not dismiss this military outrage as some may believe. And it is to be hoped that the resolutions calling for an investigation of Weber's case will not be pigeonholed in the committee of the U. S Senate and the House of Representatives.

Meanwhile, there are questions to be answered: (1) It is admitted that Weber made clear his stand objecting to the killing of his fellow men. Why, then, was he not given the same consideration as others who sought non-combatant service? (2) Why the vindictiveness against Henry Weber? Is it because he is a member of the Socialist Labor Party of America and because he manfully made his objections on political rather than religious grounds? Why did the Camp Roberts court-martial fail to advise Weber of his right to civilian counsel?

The ill wind that blew from Camp Roberts may mean some good—it may help many to understand what we may expect if we permit the enactment of peacetime military conscription. Think it over.

Deferred Spending

The Ohio legislature's reception of Governor Lausche's first set of budget recommendations probably has been predetermined by its working policy of the last half decade. It will authorize the governor's requests substantially as submitted because they fall well inside the state's probable revenues from existing taxation.

The key to the budget is the sum set aside for deferred spending. Governor Lausche's administration inherited approximately 92 million dollars from the Bricker administration. It proposes to sequester that sum for future use and to add to it appropriations for capital improvements totaling $54,645,000 during the next two years, or about 25 million more than was appropriated for the same purpose in former Governor Bricker's last budget.

The total sum of deferred spending now in sight thus reaches the impressive sum of $146,000,000 by 1947—and it probably will be even larger than that barring revisions of revenue. The only possibility of revenue revision, aside from the decrease which Governor Lausche warns will follow the end of the war, consists in the legislature's attitude on tax legislation. The Republican majority's spokesmen recently announced that delay in preparation of budget recommendations was forcing them to deal with reenactment of cigaret, liquid fuel and public utility excise tax laws without knowing whether the revenue from these taxes would be needed.

Governor Lausche has made it plain that he intends to follow the example of the Bricker administration by setting aside surplus funds for postwar needs. In other words, the taxes which helped produce surplus revenue during his predecessor's administration will be used for the same purpose during his administration. Referred spending will continue to be an Ohio fiscal policy.

The Seasons March On

In the spring of 1945, the end of the war in Europe is imminent. It will be over by the end of spring, or the beginning of summer.

But it cannot be forgotten that in every season since the autumn of 1939 the end of the war in Europe has been imminent, though with less justification than exists now, more than five years later.

Germany apparently expected the war to be over after the blitzkrieg in Poland had revealed the potentialities of Hitler's war machinery. Certainly, many Germans and a great many other Europeans expected it to be over by the end of the next summer, after the collapse of France made Germany the master of the continent.

There were days late in 1941 when Germans and Japanese must have shared the hope that complete victory would belong to the Axis before the end of winter. And during 1942 and in the early part of 1943 there were many days when those who knew most about shipping losses wondered whether Allied resistance could be sustained much longer.

But the war continued. Perhaps this time the expectation of an approaching climax will not be disappointed. It is shared; the Germans, too, know the war's duration in Europe now is a matter of weeks and months. It will be over by summer—in Europe. Its duration in the Pacific is still so indeterminate that years have not been broken down into seasons. There, the war will be over sometime by 1950, perhaps sooner. Spring, summer and winter are of no consequence.

A Food Investigation

Politically, nothing could be timelier than a Congressional investigation of food shortages at the moment when shortages are beginning to make news.

But practically, the senators who have jumped into the breach and the representatives who will follow them had better spend their time raising Victory gardens.

The United States cannot deplete its supply of farm labor, put unprecedented buying power into the hands of all industrial labor, support history's largest army, furnish food to virtually every hungry ally who puts in a request and cut off the main flow of farm machinery all at the same time without experiencing some kind of a food shortage. When such additional disturbances are counted in as a transportation shortage, a manpower shortage in the food handling industry and full employment making people hungrier than they ordinarily get, the mystery is how most American families still are able to sit down to meals that would make their counterparts in any other part of the world think the war was over and a feast was being held in celebration. It may be doubted that the Congressional investigators will find out anything about the food shortage that isn't known already.

The Stars Say

For Friday, March 23.

AN exciting and dramatic day may be looked for according to a chain of very interesting aspects. The novel, exceptional, probably unorthodox and unconventional may come to the fore, with incentive to make bold and audacious moves outside accepted grooves or into strange pastures in both idealistic objectives and mental flights.

These may concern or attract public attention with cooperation from public, political or diplomatic bodies. In private relations there is need of circumspect and considered conduct, as emotional imbalance may run away with better and safer judgments, causing regrets.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a progressive and eventful year, of sudden and thrilling adventures, in which there are possibilities of public, fraternal, political or perhaps sensational complications, involving the business, professional or romantic life. Novel, original, strange and dramatic circumstances may bring events into the limelight, unless discreet, prudent and restrained impulses be ruled by reason and good sense. In all affiliations, be circumspect for surprising denouements. Ideals and emotions may beget curious alliances.

A child born on this day may possess exceptional talents and skills of an idealistic, ingenious or curious quality, inspiring a thrilling and adventurous career, possibly of a spectacular nature.

Nazism In Defeat

By James Thrasher

The Nazi political philosophy, compounded of distortions, lies, opportunism and terrorism, flourished in a fertile soil when things were going well for the Nazi war machine. But it required victories to justify its violent measures because it was less a way of living than a blueprint for conquest, a means toward a violent end.

Now those victories are not forthcoming. The soil which nourished Nazism has been invaded. And suddenly it is apparent that the Nazi philosophy and those who created it are utterly incapable of coping with defeat.

Recent pronouncements of Propaganda Minister Goebbels and Labor Leader Ley would be amusing if they did not create the uncomfortable impression that the German nation is in the hands of madmen. Goebbels tells the Germans that "he who fights with least regard for losses has the most chance of winning". Ley tells them that it is well that they are no longer winning, for "the intoxication of victories in all quarters of the globe was distracting".

There has been more of the same from these and others. And Hitler, of course, has been gibbering increasingly fantastic promises of ultimate victory without even attempting to back them with a semblance of logic.

Perhaps the maddest of all stories concerns Hitler's plans for a new capital after the war. The story comes from Stockholm, is credited to neutral and component informants, and is said to have been discussed seriously in high Nazi circles. Against the background of other recent Nazi utterances, it seems credible.

Hitler, the story goes, has abandoned the idea of keeping the postwar capital in Berlin, for Berlin is too shattered to rebuild. So he plans to move it to Hamburg. Of course, Hamburg can't be rebuilt, either. So he would move Hamburg down river to where Cuxhaven now stands. He doesn't say what would become of Cuxhaven. Perhaps it would be moved to Berlin.

At any rate, that is his reported plan. And on the banks of the Elbe he would erect a statue of a "Goddess of Liberty" to welcome shiploads of "oppressed Bolshevik and Jew-ridden" American passengers.

It is almost incredible that the leader of a nation now fighting a losing battle for its present guilty life could delude himself into pottering about with this impossible dream. It is almost incredible that his fantasies could be listened to and repeated by his followers.

It is almost incredible, but not quite. For it is not unreasonable that a man of Hitler's mentality should lee headlong from reality when he could no longer cope with it. Hitler knows he will never reconstruct the German capital. He knows that if Germany ever erects a Goddess of Liberty it will not celebrate the Hitler concept of "liberty".

Yet like a child, or even more like a fool, he seeks to dodge approaching disaster by refusing to recognize its approach. Even if one doesn't believe the Stockholm story, there is evidence to support that statement.

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

An Explanation of Hunger

By DR. HERMAN BUNDESON

NOT many people know that hunger is a state of the blood. It takes some time—several hours—before food digests, assimilates, and enters the blood stream, when the feeling of hunger at once disappears. That is why it is considered wise to stop eating while the appetite is not entirely satisfied.

The difference between hunger and good appetite is only a matter of degree. Both sensations are probably due to fine muscular waves which pass across the stomach. If the continued absence of food induces a state of the blood which provokes reflexly very strong, rapidly recurring waves, the sensation passes from appetite to hunger.

Paradox of Nature

It seems paradoxical that Nature should supply us with a greater appetite than need for food. But this quite possibly dates back to the days when food was scarce and had to be eaten in sufficient quantities to last until the next meal which might not prove immediately available.

Does good appetite or hunger help the digestion of foods? There seems a prevalent belief that all white meat is easily digested. It happens to be true that breast of chicken and many kinds of fish are quickly digestible, but the size of muscle fiber — the smaller and finer, the better—governs the digestibility of meat and fish. Lobster, though white, is of large tough fibers and difficult for the stomach to handle. Most fish, however, is highly nutritious and easily digested — though why it has been glorified as a brain food is one of those phenomena of the human imagination.

Children's Diet

Children, if supplied with an abundance of milk and other animal foods, will not suffer a loss of energy if their diet omits meat, for the reason that meat is a stimulant which any normal child does not require. Too much meat tends to make children excitable and restless at night. A small piece of meat once a day, on the other hand is not harmful to any healthy child who has reached the age where meat has been included in his daily rations — about two years.

For the normal person, the appetite is a natural guide to the kinds and amounts of food that should be eaten. But natural appetite cannot be trusted altogether, because we have damaged it by our habits of overeating, eating when not hungry and seasoning our food so highly as to stimulate the appetite beyond capacity.

Hunger is caused by the rhythmic contractions of the stomach. These contractions are not checked by sleep, but, if they are strong, they may interfere with sleep and cause restlessness. Food stops the hunger contractions and that lets you go to sleep. Hence the bedtime snack—the well-known pitfall of the overweight.

Death's BRIGHT DIAMONDS

by Lionel Mosher

Copyright, 1945, NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Someone enters ick's room at night. There is a ruggle and a bullet goes into the ll. Nick manages to wrench the stol away from his assailant but e man himself escapes.

XIV

The sun was still quite low in the st when I slipped out the front or and walked down toward the a. Seated on the seawall smoking igaret and looking as fresh as a ild after a nap was Brenda Tem-e.

"Why, Nick, you've shaved," she eeted me. "You look positively ooming."

"Do I?" I said. "What got you o so early?"

"I had a foul night."

"Where are the others?"

She shrugged.

"Still asleep, I suppose. Why? re you hungry?"

"Tolerably."

"I'm famished. Let's run up to inot. The diner will be open."

"An inspiration," I said.

Brenda had her head back against he seat with her eyes half-closed.

"Do you know this is the first me I've felt secure since I met u last night?" she asked.

"Really?" I said.

She half turned and looked at me. "Leave the lying to the women, ick. You can trust me."

I steered carefully around a ump.

"I haven't lied—yet."

"Do you expect me to believe hat cock and bull story about the urprise party? That little conclave st night had the makings of a ovely blow-off. The air just reeked itn private hates."

"You and Eric hit it off espe-ially well," I said.

"That man!" Brenda made a ace. "Whose idea was he?"

"Papa Hudson's."

"Papa?" She gave me a sly look. You're sure he isn't Pat's?"

"Look, Brenda,' I said, "if you now the answers, why bother to sk the questions?"

"There's no use getting angry, ick." She sat forward with sud-en earnestness. "I know as well s you that Pat doesn't like Eric Woolf. But she might have her easons for being nice to him."

"Such as what?" I asked.

She did not answer at once. She ut her head back on the seat gain.

"Did you know that the Hudson ortune has dwindled to a mere hadow?" she asked.

We drew up at the diner and Brenda laid her hand on my arm. "I'll tell you something else, Nick. looked our car over this morning nd found that the rotor had been emoved from the distributor head."

"So it wasn't the rain," I said. During breakfast I turned the hing over a hundred times in my nind and got nowhere. Finally I ushed my plate away and took out ny cigarets.

"Feeling strong?" I asked.

"Top-hole," she said.

"Able to stand a shock?"

"I'm practically shock-proof."

"Someone tried to kill me last night."

Just calm like that at breakfast, the way you'd say I scarcely slept a wink. Her glance never wavered.

"You've come a long way since the old days, Nick," she said.

"The boy who made good," I quipped. "But hold on. Here comes the real shock; whoever disabled your car last night might have wanted to keep your father her, so that he could take a shot at him."

Her lips tightened, but her eyes were skeptical.

"And he get in the wrong room? I doubt it. Think a little, Nick." She gave me a calm, clear look. "Removing the rotor from the distributor head of a car wouldn't keep anyone at The Ledges who really wanted to get away. Especially when the garage was full of cars."

* * *

The light dawned. Bruce Temple, himself, had removed the rotor from the distributor head, and Phineas Hudson had made it very easy for him to stay. And that fortuitous meeting of the Temples in Minot with the well-engineered invitation to join the party. It all fell neatly into place. Afraid of the awful thoughts showing in my eyes, I looked down at the table top. I could feel Brenda's eyes boring into my brain.

"Whom do you suspect?" she asked clearly.

"Suspicion is no good," I said.

"What did he look like?"

"It was dark. He was big. That's all I know."

"Big?" An odd smile curved her lips. "As big as father?"

"Or Charley Strand or Eric Woolf," I said evasively.

"I ought to say it couldn't have been father." Her voice was dead calm. "But if you knew what I know—" she broke off and stood up. "Let's get back to The Ledges."

She didn't speak until we had crossed the old wooden bridge again and the long crescent of Crystal Beach was visible running in a graceful curve from the stony bluff where The Ledges stood.

"Look, Nick," she said. "You're a nice boy and I like you. Why don't you pack your suitcase and slip aboard a freighter that is bound for Perambuco or some equally remote place?"

"What are you afraid of?"

"Do you really want to know?" She tilted her head to one side and smiled grimly. "The dark. I wouldn't spend another night in this house for all the tea in China."

"Why not?"

"Because somebody's going to get hurt. I think I know a little something that you don't know and —I can feel it in my bones."

THE STORY: Someone enters Nick's room at night. There is a struggle and a bullet goes into the wall. Nick manages to wrench the pistol away from his assailant but the man himself escapes.

XIV

The sun was still quite low in the east when I slipped out the front door and walked down toward the sea. Seated on the seawall smoking a cigaret and looking as fresh as a child after a nap was Brenda Temple.

"Why, Nick, you've shaved," she greeted me. "You look positively blooming."

"Do I?" I said. "What got you up so early?"

"I had a foul night."

"Where are the others?"

She shrugged.

"Still asleep, I suppose. Why? Are you hungry?"

"Tolerably."

"I'm famished. Let's run up to Minot. The diner will be open."

"An inspiration," I said.

Brenda had her head back against the seat with her eyes half-closed.

"Do you know this is the first time I've felt secure since I met you last night?" she asked.

"Really?" I said.

She half turned and looked at me.

"Leave the lying to the women, Nick. You can trust me."

I steered carefully around a bump.

"I haven't lied—yet."

"Do you expect me to believe that cock and bull story about the surprise party? That little conclave last night had the makings of a lovely blow-off. The air just reeked with private hates."

"You and Eric hit it off especially well," I said.

"That' man!" Brenda made a face. "Whose idea was he?"

"Papa Hudson's."

"Papa?" She gave me a sly look. "You're sure he isn't Pat's?"

"Look, Brenda,' I said, "if you know the answers, why bother to ask the questions?"

"There's no use getting angry, Nick." She sat forward with sudden earnestness. "I know as well as you that Pat doesn't like Eric Woolf. But she might have her reasons for being nice to him."

"Such as what?" I asked.

She did not answer at once. She put her head back on the seat again.

"Did you know that the Hudson fortune has dwindled to a mere shadow?" she asked.

We drew up at the diner and Brenda laid her hand on my arm.

"I'll tell you something else, Nick. I looked our car over this morning and found that the rotor had been removed from the distributor head."

"So it wasn't the rain," I said.

During breakfast I turned the thing over a hundred times in my mind and got nowhere. Finally I pushed my plate away and took out my cigarets.

"Feeling strong?" I asked.

"Top-hole," she said.

"Able to stand a shock?"

"I'm practically shock-proof."

"Someone tried to kill me last night."

Just calm like that at breakfast, the way you'd say I scarcely slept a wink. Her glance never wavered.

"You've come a long way since the old days, Nick," she said.

"The boy who made good," I quipped. "But hold on. Here comes the real shock; whoever disabled your car last night might have wanted to keep your father here so that he could take a shot at him."

Her lips tightened, but her eyes were skeptical.

"And he get in the wrong room? I doubt it. Think a little, Nick." She gave me a calm, clear look. "Removing the rotor from the distributor head of a car wouldn't keep anyone at The Ledges who really wanted to get away. Especially when the garage was full of cars."

* * *

The light dawned. Bruce Temple, himself, had removed the rotor from the distributor head, and Phineas Hudson had made it very easy for him to stay. And that fortuitous meeting of the Temples in Minot with the well-engineered invitation to join the party. It all fell neatly into place. Afraid of the awful thoughts showing in my eyes, I looked down at the table top. I could feel Brenda's eyes boring into my brain.

"Whom do you suspect?" she asked clearly.

"Suspicion is no good," I said.

"What did he look like?"

"It was dark. He was big. That's all I know."

"Big?" An odd smile curved her lips. "As big as father?"

"Or Charley Strand or Eric Woolf," I said evasively.

"I ought to say it couldn't have been father." Her voice was dead calm. "But if you knew what I know—" she broke off and stood up. "Let's get back to The Ledges."

She didn't speak until we had crossed the old wooden bridge again and the long crescent of Crystal Beach was visible running in a graceful curve from the stony bluff where The Ledges stood.

"Look, Nick," she said. "You're a nice boy and I like you. Why don't you pack your suitcase and slip aboard a freighter that is bound for Perambuco or some equally remote place?"

"What are you afraid of?"

"Do you really want to know?" She tilted her head to one side and smiled grimly. "The dark. I wouldn't spend another night in this house for all the tea in China."

"Why not?"

"Because somebody's going to get hurt. I think I know a little something that you don't know and —I can feel it in my bones."

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, March 22.—Stocks did better today, under leadership of rails and aircrafts, but market dealings were among the slowest since November.

Prices stiffened at the opening and recoveries soon ran to two or more points. Top marks were reduced near the close. Declines were fairly well distributed. The ticker tape frequently halted. Transfers were in the vicinity of 750,000 shares.

Rivers At Pittsburgh Hit Flood Stage Again

PITTSBURGH, March 22.—The weather bureau today predicted the Monongahela and Allegheny rivers would crest at flood stage—25 feet—at 10 tonight following heavy rain and a wet snowfall.

Fed by intermittent downpours for the past three days, the rivers here were climbing at the rate of three-tenths of a foot per hour. At mid-morning they reached 22.1 feet.

High-velocity winds uprooted trees and knocked down power lines to curtail utilities in some areas last night. Northwestern counties were hardest hit by the snowy gales.

Evacuate Three Million Civilians From Tokyo

LONDON, March 22.—Nearly 3,000,000 Japanese have been evacuated from Tokyo and steps are being taken to speed up removal of others, the Tokyo radio said today.

Quoting a statement made to the diet by the interior minister, the broadcast said "already the civilian population in the capital has shrunk to less than four millions" of the city's prewar census.

The statesman's yearbook gives Tokyo's 1940 population as 6,778,804.

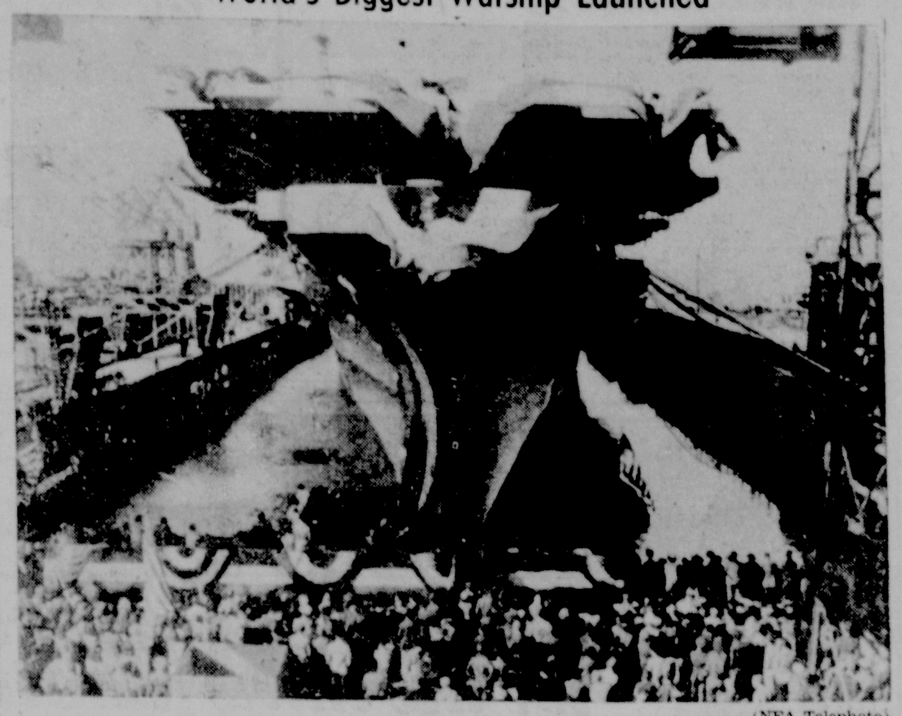

Mary Haessly, Don Rice Win High School Event

Mary Lou Haessley and Don Rice were named King and Queen, respectively, at a recent War Bond selling campaign at Salem High school. The drive ended March 17 and results of the elections were announced.

Each purchaser of a 10-cent War savings stamp was entitled to a vote for the King or Queen.

Probe Rhine Defenses

Cross-Rhine patrolling in the Ruhr and to the north continued.

The American First army fanning out from its east Rhine salient between the Sieg and Wied rivers and powering its growing strength over several" bridges, moved to within less than 15 miles of Gladbach and Mulheim. At points, the First army was less than a dozen miles from the industrial region.

Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' shock troops captured Buisdorf where the Ruhr superhighway crossed the Sieg, Rott and Soven. They pushed into Westerhausen and won 14 miles of the military highway.

The remnants of nine German divisions have been destroyed by the Third army between Trier and Kaiserslautern in recent days, AP Correspondent Theburn Wiant reported from Patton's headquarters. The 11,335 prisoners processed yesterday brought the Third army's total since Feb. 1 to 93,775. Some 11,000 prisoners remained to be counted by the Third army; the Seventh army had 10,000 or so more awaiting processing.

A high ranking German prisoner said one German commanding general had committed suicide in despondency over the destruction of the Wehrmacht west of the Rhine.

War Working Mother, 46, Stabbed By 'Hex' Victim

YOUNGSTOWN, March 22.—A 46-year-old mother of eight was in the hospital today after a man knifed her because, he said, she "hexed" him.

Chief John B. Thomas said the woman, Mrs. Charles D. Snyder, was attacked yesterday as she was walking with friends. The man is being held by police.

The officer quoted steel mill officials who questioned the assailant as saying he was "under the delusion that Mrs. Snyder had hexed him".

Thomas said the victim and her assailant worked on the same shift in a steel mill.

Check Your Tire Week Being Observed Locally

Salem tire dealers this week are cooperating in the national Check-Your-Tire week sponsored by the National Association of Independent Tire Dealers and government agencies.

Due partly to the impression that the war in Europe would soon be over and that new tires would be released for civilian use, the public generally has been lax in tire conservation. This was proven by surveys made in several cities by OPA which revealed that almost two tires per car were in need of recapping.

Tire dealers of this city have agreed to assist in a tire-checking program. Motorists will be left a slip showing the number of times on their car which need recapping.

Local ration board officials point out that while the public is urged to have their tires inspected this week, this is a continual process and tires should be carefully checked by experienced servicemen at regular periods.

Motorists were reminded today by the District Office of Price administration to change the license number on the cover of their gasoline ration books when they obtain their new automobile license.

faces imminent invasion, has been terribly knocked about by Allied bombing, and recently by Eisenhower's heavy artillery shooting from the west bank of the Rhine. Now the Saarland is gone.

That throws the Germans onto their badly depleted reserves and their industries in the southern part of the country, Austria and Czechoslovakia. You will recall it's this area in which the Nazi leaders have been figuring on holing-up for a last ditch stand.

The Swiss press today reports that Hitler has completed preparations to carry out this grandiose scheme. If the Fuehrer were capable of assaying his prospects he would see that the gods of war are fickle masters and that he is in desperate straits.

The Russians have renewed their fierce drives in Hungary and Czechoslovakia—aimed at penetration of Austria. Success of these Red advances will mean loss of further industries. The Nazi army will be placed between the Allies advancing from the north and the Muscovites driving in from the east. Any Nazi idea of making a protracted final stand in the south is hopeless.

the gigantic task of reconstruction nearly impossible."

The Swiss press asserted Adolf Hitler had completed preparations for a last stand in the mountainous Berchtesgaden region in southern Germany.

There, Swiss papers said, Hitler hopes to wait out the "twilight period" after the war which he believes will end in a reign of chaos and unrest that will split the Allies asunder and permit a rebirth of National Socialist Germany.

Cure For Drunkeness Cited By Evangelist

The only way to remedy the drunkeness is to have a genuine revival of salvation, Rev. John Woodhouse, Batavia, N. Y., evangelist, said last night at the First Friends church.

His sermon theme was "The Tragedy of Apostacy." The speaker believes that America is in spiritual bankruptcy and that she has a form of godliness without power.

A patriotic service will be held tonight and the evangelist will use for his subject, "I Die at Dawn." Special sections of the church will be served for the families of servicemen.

The meetings will continue each evening through Sunday.

faces imminent invasion, has been terribly knocked about by Allied bombing, and recently by Eisenhower's heavy artillery shooting from the west bank of the Rhine. Now the Saarland is gone.

That throws the Germans onto their badly depleted reserves and their industries in the southern part of the country, Austria and Czechoslovakia. You will recall it's this area in which the Nazi leaders have been figuring on holing-up for a last ditch stand.

The Swiss press today reports that Hitler has completed preparations to carry out this grandiose scheme. If the Fuehrer were capable of assaying his prospects he would see that the gods of war are fickle masters and that he is in desperate straits.

The Russians have renewed their fierce drives in Hungary and Czechoslovakia—aimed at penetration of Austria. Success of these Red advances will mean loss of further industries. The Nazi army will be placed between the Allies advancing from the north and the Muscovites driving in from the east. Any Nazi idea of making a protracted final stand in the south is hopeless.

the gigantic task of reconstruction nearly impossible."

The Swiss press asserted Adolf Hitler had completed preparations for a last stand in the mountainous Berchtesgaden region in southern Germany.

There, Swiss papers said, Hitler hopes to wait out the "twilight period" after the war which he believes will end in a reign of chaos and unrest that will split the Allies asunder and permit a rebirth of National Socialist Germany.

Cure For Drunkeness Cited By Evangelist

The only way to remedy the drunkeness is to have a genuine revival of salvation, Rev. John Woodhouse, Batavia, N. Y., evangelist, said last night at the First Friends church.

His sermon theme was "The Tragedy of Apostacy." The speaker believes that America is in spiritual bankruptcy and that she has a form of godliness without power.

A patriotic service will be held tonight and the evangelist will use for his subject, "I Die at Dawn." Special sections of the church will be served for the families of servicemen.

The meetings will continue each evening through Sunday.

Salem Boosters Plan Dinner!

To Meet Friday For Annual Election Of Officers At Memorial Building

Salem Boosters club members, idle since their annual football banquet Dec. 11, will convene at the Memorial building at 8 p. m. Friday to elect officers for 1945 and to make plans for thhe annual basketball banquet.

Discussions are under way this year to promote a large basketball banquet for Salem High school's cage quintet, which boasts one of the finest records posted here in years.

The Quaker cagers chalked up 17 wins in 21 games, including three tourney frays. During the regular season Salem won 15 of 18 games. They were beaten by Columbiana, East Liverpool and Warren during the season and posted one win against the Potters in a game here.

Seek Speaker

A speaker for the banquet has not been named, but President Joe Kelley said several had been mentioned and were under consideration.

The affair last season was held in the home economics room at the High school.

The election of officers is held annually at the first meeting of the club in the new year.

The organization has not had a business meeting since before the football banquet here, when Coach "Bo" McMillin of Indiana university, spoke.

Northridge-Ashville Both Make Initial Bows Before Class B Finals Spectators

By HAROLD HARRISON

COLUMBUS, March 22.—Two "Freshman" teams as far as final state tournament competition is concerned will open the Class B High school basketball action at Springfield Saturday.

Neither Ashville nor Northridge, the first game foes, ever has been in a final tournament but the fact they are closer to a state title than ever before doesn't detract from their current championship possibilities.

A glance at the records shows that.

Ashville has been beaten only once in 30 games and Northridge has suffered only one setback in 27 contests. Ashville will present virtually the same combination which lost only in tournament play last year. Northridge has come up with a brother act in Walt and Bob Hirsch who despite their youth—Walt is 15 and Bob is 16—has caused a lot of havoc among foes.

The Hirsch boys have become known as "Big Poison" and "Little Poison" and they're just that. They scored Northridge's first 18 points last Saturday night as the Polar Bears thumped Yellow Springs in the regional finals.

One Defeat

Northridge's only defeat this season was a 37 to 22 affair with Eaton, a team the Polar Bears subsequently licked in tournament play. That was Northridge's poorest offensive showing the season until the team squeezed past Centerville, 21 to 14, in the Montgomery county tournament.

Through the regular schedule, the only time Northridge was held to less than 40 points was in the game with Eaton.

Ashville has an equally potent offensive record. It rolled over every regularly scheduled foe until the final game of the season when it dropped a 31 to 30 decision to Norton in a game arranged for the benefit of wounded soldiers at Fletcher General hospital in Cambridge.

The Ashville record is an indication of what can be accomplished when boys play together as a unit. Most of the boys have been playing together since grade school days and it's essentially a Senior team.

The only underclassman on the first string is Charles Pettibone, a Junior forward.

In addition to playing together all those years, the boys have shown a tremendous will to learn. They've hitchhiked their way to basketball clinics in an effort to improve their game. Their Coach Lawrence Fullen doesn't have to worry about the boys if he happens to be absent. They drill just as conscientiously as if he was watching their every move.

On paper, Ashville and Northridge look to be about as evenly matched as possible. Ashville is a little worried about lack of height—the tallest boys are six feet—but Northridge's biggest is Bob Hirsch and he'll only have a two inch advantage over the biggest Ashvillians.

Here are the squads which will represent Ashville and Northridge in the final tournament:

How to Greet a Wounded Soldier

Charlie Jenkins got back from overseas the other day, discharged for wounds... and he was pretty well banged up.

Naturally, our town felt mighty bad about it. We wanted to sympathize with him and help him. But Doc Walters set us straight about that.

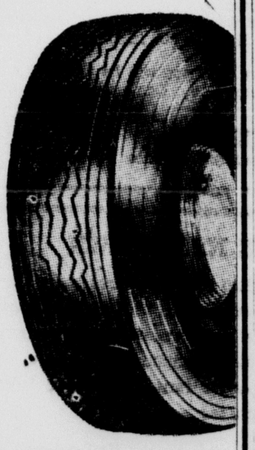

He said that what Charlie wanted most was to be accepted as one of the gang again... as if nothing had happened. So we asked him over to pitch horseshoes with his good hand, and enjoy a friendly glass of beer and chew the fat like old times.

And you should have seen him pick up! From being scared of meeting people, Charlie got his confidence back and soon became his own self again.

From where I sit, Doc Walters gave us the right steer. The wounded men coming home don't want our sympathy or our overenthusiastic help. They want to be treated like the rest of us... with a chance to work and lead a normal life. And that's the least we can offer them.

To Meet Friday For Annual Election Of Officers At Memorial Building

Salem Boosters club members, idle since their annual football banquet Dec. 11, will convene at the Memorial building at 8 p. m. Friday to elect officers for 1945 and to make plans for thhe annual basketball banquet.

Discussions are under way this year to promote a large basketball banquet for Salem High school's cage quintet, which boasts one of the finest records posted here in years.

The Quaker cagers chalked up 17 wins in 21 games, including three tourney frays. During the regular season Salem won 15 of 18 games. They were beaten by Columbiana, East Liverpool and Warren during the season and posted one win against the Potters in a game here.

Seek Speaker

A speaker for the banquet has not been named, but President Joe Kelley said several had been mentioned and were under consideration.

The affair last season was held in the home economics room at the High school.

The election of officers is held annually at the first meeting of the club in the new year.

The organization has not had a business meeting since before the football banquet here, when Coach "Bo" McMillin of Indiana university, spoke.

Northridge-Ashville Both Make Initial Bows Before Class B Finals Spectators

By HAROLD HARRISON

COLUMBUS, March 22.—Two "Freshman" teams as far as final state tournament competition is concerned will open the Class B High school basketball action at Springfield Saturday.

Neither Ashville nor Northridge, the first game foes, ever has been in a final tournament but the fact they are closer to a state title than ever before doesn't detract from their current championship possibilities.

A glance at the records shows that.

Ashville has been beaten only once in 30 games and Northridge has suffered only one setback in 27 contests. Ashville will present virtually the same combination which lost only in tournament play last year. Northridge has come up with a brother act in Walt and Bob Hirsch who despite their youth—Walt is 15 and Bob is 16—has caused a lot of havoc among foes.

The Hirsch boys have become known as "Big Poison" and "Little Poison" and they're just that. They scored Northridge's first 18 points last Saturday night as the Polar Bears thumped Yellow Springs in the regional finals.

One Defeat

Northridge's only defeat this season was a 37 to 22 affair with Eaton, a team the Polar Bears subsequently licked in tournament play. That was Northridge's poorest offensive showing the season until the team squeezed past Centerville, 21 to 14, in the Montgomery county tournament.

Through the regular schedule, the only time Northridge was held to less than 40 points was in the game with Eaton.

Ashville has an equally potent offensive record. It rolled over every regularly scheduled foe until the final game of the season when it dropped a 31 to 30 decision to Norton in a game arranged for the benefit of wounded soldiers at Fletcher General hospital in Cambridge.

The Ashville record is an indication of what can be accomplished when boys play together as a unit. Most of the boys have been playing together since grade school days and it's essentially a Senior team.

The only underclassman on the first string is Charles Pettibone, a Junior forward.

In addition to playing together all those years, the boys have shown a tremendous will to learn. They've hitchhiked their way to basketball clinics in an effort to improve their game. Their Coach Lawrence Fullen doesn't have to worry about the boys if he happens to be absent. They drill just as conscientiously as if he was watching their every move.

On paper, Ashville and Northridge look to be about as evenly matched as possible. Ashville is a little worried about lack of height—the tallest boys are six feet—but Northridge's biggest is Bob Hirsch and he'll only have a two inch advantage over the biggest Ashvillians.

Here are the squads which will represent Ashville and Northridge in the final tournament:

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

How to Greet a Wounded Soldier

Charlie Jenkins got back from overseas the other day, discharged for wounds ... and he was pretty well banged up.

Naturally, our town felt mighty bad about it. We wanted to sympathize with him and help him. But Doc Walters set us straight about that.

He said that what Charlie wanted most was to be accepted as one of the gang again ... as if nothing had happened. So we asked him over to pitch horseshoes with his good hand, and enjoy a friendly glass of beer and chew the fat like old times.

And you should have seen him pick up! From being scared of meeting people, Charlie got his confidence back and soon became his own self again.

From where I sit, Doc Walters gave us the right steer. The wounded men coming home don't want our sympathy or our overenthusiastic help. They want to be treated like the rest of us ... with a chance to work and lead a normal life. And that's the least we can offer them.

Ohio Is Second In Honey Production

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, March 22—If you're looking for honey, Ohio is better than mosts states as a place to begin.

The Buckeye state is second only to California in honey bee population and ranks fourth nationally in honey production.

State Apiarist Charles A. Reese of Wadsworth reported today that Ohio had about 310,000 bee colonies last year, each colony averaging between 50,000 to 75,000 of the winged honey makers. Total Buckeye honey production last year was 11,160,000 pounds and bee men expect it will run considerably higher in 1945.

The state also produces considerable beeswax which has about 250 war uses, he added.

Heaviest bee losses last winter, Reese reported, occurred in the Scioto valley south of Columbus and in "spots" throughout the northern section in which bee-keeping is concentrated.

He observed that the heaviest bee population had shifted in recent years from northeastern Ohio to Wood county and to the region from Champaign and Clark counties west. Ohio's largest bee-keeper is located in Champaign county, he said.
